

Will Israel be able to generate 40 percent of its electricity?

Israel's most recent target is to generate 40 percent of its electricity from renewable sources, mainly solar energy, by 2030. A new, contentious climate deal accepted in November by almost 200 countries calls for an eventual end of some coal power and of fossil fuel subsidies.

Why is Israel aiming to increase energy generation from renewable sources?

Most countries are seeking to increase energy generation from renewable sources amid an escalating climate crisis that is warming the planet at an unprecedented pace. Israel's most recent target is to generate 40 percent of its electricity from renewable sources, mainly solar energy, by 2030.

Does Israel have a diplomatic relationship with NewMed energy?

Israeli energy companies Enlight Energy and NewMed Energy, formerly Delek Drilling (part of Yitzhak Tshuva's Delek Group), announced a plan this week to jointly develop, bankroll, build, and manage renewable energy projects across the Middle East and North Africa, including in countries with which Israel does not have formal diplomatic ties.

Where do Israel's renewable sources come from?

The vast majority of Israel's renewable sources come from solar power, including from the Tze'elim, Ketura Sun, Ashalim Power Station, the 330 MW Dimona, and 250 MW Ta'anakh solar parks.

How much energy does Israel use?

Most energy in Israel comes from fossil fuels. The country's total primary energy demand is significantly higher than its total primary energy production, relying heavily on imports to meet its energy needs. Total primary energy consumption was 304 TWh (1.037 quad) in 2016, or 26.2 million tonne of oil equivalent.
