We stayed at the resort Le Tikehau that is probably one of the most affordable high end resort of French Polynesia. The only small downside of this resort was the restaurant in the evening. The food was good but I found the starters a bit expensive and it was mostly European food.

I don't know much about French Polynesia, but perhaps you may want to investigate if shipping from France proper or the EU has similar benefits available. We also have shipped items to remote areas as part of a palletized freight. It's slow as hell (60+ days to get to parts of Africa) but it all arrived safe and sound and was reasonably priced.

Jaques Cousteau explored this region of french polynesia and claimed that the Tuamotu Islands (Tikehau, Fakarava, Rangiroa, etc.) had the "most diversity of different fish" he had seen in one place. We saw countless types of fish, sharks, etc. and while we got unlucky and didnt" see them, Tikehau is arguably the best place in Polynesia to see ...
