As a Gestalt though, I build economic stations up to my Starbase cap, primarily in nebulas. I build Solar panels, Nebula refineries, Hydroponics (robots may build empty 1 Agri district to roll the tech) and Black Hole observatories. Also I do upgrade them ...

Exactly my thoughts. After all, space is the perfect place for solar panels: never out of sunlight, no worries about dust / weather obscuring them, etc. And they're much lighter-weight than a corresponding fission / fusion reactor. On a starship, you're worried about power density (since you have a limited size in which to fit things), but on an orbiting platform, you can make better ...

HEARD AND MCDONALD ISLANDS AUSTRALIA Heard Island and the McDonald Islands are in the Southern Ocean, approximately 4,100 km south-west of Perth and 1,700 km from the Antarctic continent. Their distinctive conservation value is as one of the world's rare pristine island ecosystems which have virtually no ...

Putting trade hubs and an offworld trading company is a waste because that's just 2 trade value each hub, and there is some energy upkeep. Gestalt consciousness have solar panels because they don't have trade and don't use trade hubs. But normal empires should be able to ...

Why are solar panels on space stations only for the gestalt?! I'm sure it has something to do with the lore of the hive mind and networking and some such, but considering that the ISS has solar panels and humanity isn't a hive mind, that seems like a shit deal.. I didn't realize how much I relied on the panels until I tried to play a Necroid species yesterday and couldn't keep my ...

Generally not. They produce much too little to be meaningful additions to your economy. The Hydroponics Bay is at least usable for what it's worth (since there aren't many good options to fill starbase building slots, so sometimes you'll have an empty one just sitting around with nothing useful to put in it). However, starbase module slots and building slots are much too valuable, ...

Named after individual people: Captain John Heard, American sealer who sighted the island on 25 November 1853 & Captain William McDonald, who discovered the McDonald Islands close to Heard Island six weeks later, on 4 January 1854

I didn't say you shouldn't use them, I was just wondering why it takes research to do so. We use solar panels NOW. Its odd that the game starts you out with FTL and nuclear powerplants but ...

L'isola Heard e le isole McDonald sono isole disabitate che si trovano nell'Oceano Antartico, a circa due terzi di distanza tra il Madagascar e l'Antartide. Esse costituiscono un territorio esterno australiano dal 1947 e contengono i due soli vulcani attivi presenti sul territorio australiano, uno dei quali (Mawson Peak) è anche la montagna australiana più elevata, con 2.745 metri.

Das Heard Island and McDonald Islands Marine Reserve ist ein 71.200 km² großes Meeresschutzgebiet im am weitesten von Australien entfernten Außengebiet. Es liegt im Indischen Ozean, 1.700 km nörlich der australischen Mawson-Station in der Antarktis und etwa 4.100 km südwestlich von Western Australia und ist etwa ebenso weit von Südafrika entfernt. In practice, Solar Panels fulfill a completely different role from Trade Hubs. In the late-game they are strictly inferior to Anchorages, and they are primarily used as early-game productivity tools ...

So as a general rule of thumb, if you need the naval capacity Anchorages are just better than Solar Panels. The upkeep reduction and savings will exceed what the Solar Panel could otherwise produce. The power of solar panels (no pun intended) is giving you a way to utilize those starbase modules when you don't need the naval capacity.

Solar panels are only an option for gestalt empires. If you capture a starbase from a gestalt empire that already had solar panels, they should remain in place, but non-gestalts can't build new ones. edit: source - 00_starbase_modules.txt

In the heart of the Southern Ocean lies a haven for wildlife: Heard Island and McDonald Islands (known as HIMI). HIMI are a sub-Antarctic island group and Australian external territory located in the Southern Ocean, around 4,000km southwest of Australia and 1,000 km north of Antarctica.

Located in the Southern Ocean, this Australian external territory comprises mainly two volcanic islands, Heard Island and the McDonald Islands, featuring stark volcanic landscapes, glaciers, and the highest mountain in Australian territory, Mawson Peak. Significance.

Management plans also explain what the objectives are for managing the area, and what the managers will do to help meet those objectives.. It is a requirement of the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (the EPBC Act), under which the Heard Island and McDonald Islands (HIMI) Marine Reserve was declared, that a management plan be prepared ...

I can't seem to find a non-gestalt (only machine intelligence) that can build solar panels on space stations (seems to be replaced with trade hubs for everyone else).
